

Surgical Solutions Client Hospitals Achieve Zero Deficiencies Across All TJC and DNV Surveys

From 2025 to 2026, every partner facility passed accreditation reviews with no findings.

[Overland Park, KS; June 9, 2026] – Surgical Solutions, a leading perioperative managed services and consulting company, announced today that every one of its partner hospitals has successfully passed accreditation surveys conducted by The Joint Commission (TJC) or DNV with zero deficiencies: no findings, no citations, no corrective action required.

The achievement spans the 2025-2026 survey cycle and covers partner facilities across the country, from large metropolitan health systems to standalone hospitals, representing a broad cross-section of perioperative environments. The achievement is notable in an industry where, according to The Joint Commission, deficiencies are found in nearly three in four hospital surveys.

"What this record represents to me is trust between our clinical team and the hospitals we serve. When a facility invites us in, they are committing to a higher standard of care, and results like these show that commitment is mutual," said Elizabeth "Betty" Casey, MSN, RN, CNOR, CRCST, CHL, Chief Nursing Officer at Surgical Solutions.

"Since joining Surgical Solutions, every hospital we work with has passed with no findings," said Robin Evans, BSN, RN, RNFA, CRCST, CHL, Clinical Nurse Specialist Manager at Surgical Solutions. "This is not a coincidence. This is what happens when teams are prepared, processes are tight and standards are built into daily practice, not just dusted off before a survey," said Evans.

Accreditation surveys by TJC and DNV are among the most rigorous evaluations a hospital can face, assessing everything from infection control and instrument sterilization to staff competency and documentation practices.

For facilities approaching their own accreditation window, Surgical Solutions offers mock survey support and hands-on preparation services designed to identify gaps before surveyors do. "We invite hospitals and ASCs to reach out," Evans said. "We can conduct mock surveys or come on-site to work alongside your team to ensure your success."

Surgical Solutions works with hospitals and health systems nationwide, providing vendor-neutral consulting and managed services across perioperative departments.
